

Name: Emmerlyn Fry

Gender: Female

Timeline: Steampunk

Traits: Survivor, Knowledge, Saboteur

Occupation: Ratcatcher

Biography: Beware the Ratcatchers, their image is foul and their bite is poison. New Brasshaven's worst-kept secret is the Ratcatchers. The ruling class employs them to navigate the underworld and sniff out anyone who causes "trouble". Emmerlyn takes her job seriously. She moves through the shadows in the cover of darkness, seeking information and persons of interest. If you are on Emmerlyn's list, you can guarantee that your sunrises are murky and numbered.

Appearance: Slight, slim, and sharp. Emmerlyn's eyes are dark and piercing, her mouth is fixed in a smirk. Her dark brunette hair is tied up in an efficient bun, allowing her pale skin to almost radiate in the dark. Knife hilts can be seen in her full-length black leather jacket pocket.

Name: Ronan Ingleby

Gender: Male

Timeline: Forgotten

Traits: Creativity, Saboteur, Strength

Occupation: Chief War Artificer

Biography: During the Calvesari empire's campaign to take back territory they had previously lost, Ronan Ingleby almost single-handedly led the empire to victory. He was an unparalleled creator of siege weapons and mechanical nightmares. But when peace came, Ronan became redundant, and his name became doused with fear. Now emboldened by peace, people have spoken up about the atrocities that Ronan had created and questioned the soundness of his mind. How could a "normal" mind have created such instruments of war? His machines were dismantled by terrified hands, and Ronan was forced out of the empire. He and his weapons have faded into obscurity, but the Calvesari empire will never forget the price they paid to defeat their enemies.

Appearance: Ronan has a shock of longish ginger hair that is wild and unstyled, which sits just above his shoulders. He wears a brigandine-style leather jacket and trousers. In his hand, he holds a modded mathematical compass, his prized tool.

Name: Usaro Know

Gender: Non-Binary

Timeline: Futuristic

Traits: Inventor, Innovation, Scientific

Occupation: Cognition Broker

Biography: In a future where thoughts can be digitized, traded, stolen, and erased, Usaro Knox is one of the few who choose to wield this power responsibly. After surviving a brutal black-market cognition heist (in which an entire community's memories were siphoned), Usaro turned rogue to undo the pain that other brokers had inflicted over the years. Usaro now travels between communities, restoring stolen memories and liberating minds that have been enslaved.

Appearance: Usaro wears their afro-textured hair in a wide mohawk. They wear an oversized t-shirt and jacket with shorts. They have neural glyphs tattooed on each of their fingers that they use to extract and alter neural data. These glyphs glow a pink colour.

Name: Winston e'Rooke

Gender: Male

Timeline: Rebel

Traits: Tactician, Diplomatic, Saboteur

Occupation: Propaganda Designer

Biography: As The Corporation's propaganda designer, Winston is responsible for keeping the masses fed with just the right amount of information. He guarantees that they see and hear exactly what The Corporation wants to. Carefully placing misinformation in the right places and managing tactical rhetoric campaigns, Winston keeps the masses in a false sense of delusion. He leads more towards celebration, encouraging the population to band together to glorify the wins and opportunities of being a part of The Corporation's family. Winston keeps his ear to the ground, listening to what is whispered in the streets so he can swoop in and use the whispers to his own advantage, sabotaging rebellion gossip.

Appearance: Winston wears an elegant three-piece suit with a contrasting tie. His hair is mid-length, styled with a side parting. His pride and joy is his sleek fountain pen, poised and ready to pen his latest rhetoric for The Corporation.